SIXTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

The Pain of Isolation

When Winston was five years old, he was diagnosed with tuberculosis. In the early 1950s many young children with this disease were taken from their families and placed in a quarantine hospital. By today's standards of parenting, that's a frightening thought. Experts now tell us how important the early formative years are. Quarantined children surely must have felt isolated and frightened. Parents must have felt robbed. Lepers and their families must have experienced similar feelings in the severe isolation that was brought about by their disease.

FIRST READING: Leviticus 13:1-2, 44-46 RESPONSORIAL PSALM: Psalm 32:1-2, 5, 11
SECOND READING: 1 Corinthians 10:31 — 11:1 GOSPEL: Mark 1:40-45

Comment

The law described in Leviticus is harsh. The Israelites were not only frightened of the dreaded contagious disease of leprosy, but fresh in their memories was the plague of boils God sent the Egyptians and their livestock. They knew God sent the plagues because Pharaoh opposed God's will. They feared the same would happen to them if they did not obey God's law. At the time of this law, the people perceived a close connection between sickness and sin. If someone contracted this deadly disease, it must have been because they or their parents had sinned. So great was the people's ignorance about leprosy that they quarantined people who had any sort of skin disease. If by chance the victim was cured, he or she had to appear before a priest. If the priest agreed that the person was healed he or she could return to the community.

It is his observance of this law that endeared Jesus to many people the day he cured the leper. Kneeling and beseeching, the leper came to find Jesus. So strong was the man's faith, so desperate his situation, so hopeless his isolation, that he risked breaking the law to come into the midst of the people. Jesus was so moved to compassion that he proceeded to do things that would bring him some wanted and unwanted notice. First Jesus cured the leper. He had the power to defeat the disease. He had a divine power by which he could show others God's love. But not everyone was ready to know this love. Jesus knew there would be problems with careless stories of healings and miracles, so he asked the leper to go quietly among the crowd and show himself to a priest. Jesus respected the law described in Leviticus and encouraged the leper to carry it out. It was important to the community that the man be declared clean and return to a normal life among the people. The healed leper did not, however, go about this quietly. In his grateful excitement, he told everyone he met about this awesome man Jesus. What Jesus feared had now come to be. He could no longer walk openly into a city. Nevertheless, many people that day came to believe in him.

Reflection

One of the greatest fears we have about many diseases today is the fact that there is no remedy and little treatment. It's a fear not unknown to those (and their loved ones) who suffer from AIDS, cancer, cystic fibrosis, and tuberculosis. People in Jesus' day did not know when leprosy would strike. They weren't even sure what skin diseases were truly leprosy so they lumped them all together. They only knew the ugliness and contagiousness of the disease.

It's what we do with our fears that challenges and defines us. Fear of the unknown can paralyze us in thought and action. We become stuck in our ignorance and either avoid the truth or disguise it in some way. Jesus allows us to become "unstuck."

He went directly to the leper who begged for healing. We, too, beg for healing. Through the sacrament of reconciliation, Jesus Christ heals in us the things that separate us from him. When we celebrate Eucharist, we are gathered and reaffirmed in the community of believers. Jesus Christ gives us the healing power of salvation. Over and over we have seen what the power of Christ and his love can do. We only need the heart to be healed and purified. This seems easy enough until the moment we are faced with the temptation to give in to our weakness. Like the leper, we need to recognize our sinfulness, seek help for its cure, and turn away from that which infects us. Jesus is there waiting for us.

The Conversion Experience

February is Black History Month and each weekend we will have a speaker from our parish to speak at every mass. However, gladly we announce that St. Therese will be closing out the month with "Conversion Experience" In general, conversion to Christian Faith primarily involves repentance from sin and a decision to live a life that is holy and acceptable to God through faith, NOT just black history but OUR history. How exciting would it be to share personal conversion through communicating with fellowship among believers, and spread openly evangelistic outreach within our communities? Pastors from other churches as well as Fr. Donatus will speak to their own conversion for this program. The program will be held on February 26, 2018 at 6:00 p.m. in the Life Center. The festivities will have speakers, music and a light meal. Please come out and help support this event.
